

Glenn Pomerantz, MD, JD

Medical Director, Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center

Medical Director, Aetna

Dr. Glenn Pomerantz is a graduate of the University of Miami School Medicine, where he received his medical degree. He completed his residency training in internal medicine at the Faulkner Hospital in Boston where he also served as chief resident. He then went on to obtain his law degree from the Boston University School of Law, while in law school he started his professional career as a staff internist for Foxboro Area Health Center in Massachusetts and shortly thereafter, opened his own primary care office in his hometown of Sharon, Massachusetts. He was recruited from his primary care operation to the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center as a medical director. During his tenure he was elected a board member in the physician hospital organization and assumed additional responsibilities as medical director for compliance and revenue for Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center's large community based primary care practice.

In addition to his many administrative responsibilities' Glenn also enjoyed his teaching role as an Instructor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School. He joins us from CIGNA HealthCare in Bloomfield, Conn., where he served most recently as CIGNA's national medical director for national contracting and medical management.
